

Questions and Answers

Q. My wife and I receive a combined monthly social security check. She plans to visit our daughter for several months and will be away from home. Can my wife get her benefit in a separate check?

A. Yes, she can. Your wife should call or visit her social security office to arrange to receive her check separately at your daughter's address. However, she should be sure to notify the social security office when she returns home.

Q. My 17-year-old daughter has been disabled since birth. She and I are collecting monthly social security benefits on my deceased husband's earnings record. Is there any way my daughter's monthly benefits can continue after she reaches 18 even though she will not be attending school?

A. If her condition is severe and she remains in your care, you and your disabled daughter's social security benefits may continue after her 18th birthday.

Q. No, but my employer has probably been asked about the different name on the employee earnings report.

Communists Seek Footholds In Latin America

Recent developments in Latin America ring a warning signal of the Communist attempt to sharpen the dagger being pointed at the United States from south of the border.

Cuban Dictator Fidel Castro recently warned the United States that first it was Cuba that went to the Reds, now it is Chile and that other Latin American nations will follow.

In an all-out effort to win support, the leftist leaders of Chile are engaging in the Latin revolutionary sport of pulling Uncle Sam's beard. They have seized American-owned copper holdings and other businesses valued at almost $1 billion, and in open violation of international law, they have refused to pay compensation to the owners.

These losses will be borne by American taxpayers under a law which, in effect, passes failures in foreign policy on to the taxpayers in the form of government insurance. The American copper companies alone hold government insurance to the tune of $350 million, and the $150 million U.S.-owned International Telephone and Telegraph Co., which Chile has taken over is insured for more than $100 million.

Ecuador is another of the Latin American countries which is taking pokes at the United States, having seized 74 American fishing boats, with 40 such seizures this year and 21 of these in the past three weeks alone. In blatant violation of the internationally agreed-upon territorial limit of 12 miles for fishing rights, Ecuador makes these state-like attacks on U.S. owned boats as far as 200 miles out at sea. Once again it is the Federal Government, supported by our taxes, which must reimburse the fishing companies for the fines levied against their ships by the government of Ecuador.

In spite of these blatant actions, Ecuador received $23.2 million from us last year in loans and grants. Chile still owes more than $300 million in outstanding loans and grants to the United States Export-Import Bank, and another $500 million to the Agency for International Development.

Increasingly frequent, illegal, uncompensated confiscations of private American-owned property by some Latin American governments results, in part, from wishy-washy, on-again-off-again policies toward our southern neighbors.

But the fact is that both Communist Russia and Communist China are attempting to broaden Red footholds in the Western Hemisphere. Castro is a willing tool in their hands. They pose a serious and direct threat to the security of the United States, and it is against this danger that we must remain on constant alert.

MOTHER GIVES KIDNEY TO SAVE SON

The Enterprise

Arthur Mount, 19, hopes for only one gift this Christmas.

It is the gift of life. His mother, Mrs. Darcie Lee Mount, left Elba Sunday night for Birmingham, where she is being tested to see whether she can donate a kidney to her eldest son. If she is found to be a suitable donor, doctors say Arthur will have an 85 per cent chance of survival.

Arthur, a junior at Elba High School, suffered serious kidney damage in 1967 from a disease doctors call nephrotic syndrome. His condition has grown progressively worse and he has had to be hospitalized several times at Coffee General Hospital in Enterprise. His doctor here sent him earlier this year to the University Medical Center, where specialists recommended a kidney transplant.

With a kidney from a near relative, they said, he would stand a 85 per cent chance of a kidney from someone killed in an accident was also considered as a possibility. But that idea was abandoned, because the odds of his living with a "cadaver" kidney would be only 50-50.

When Arthur had his last attack, soon after Easter, Mrs. Mount considered donating a kidney. But she also considered the fact that she has five other children at home, ranging from 2 to 17, and she herself would have to be in the hospital as long as a month. Her husband was living in Florida, and she had no income except Medicare.

"When Arthur was sick the last time," she said, "I was afraid, I'm not afraid now. This may be the time to test our faith. I have faith in God, and I'm not afraid."

She planned to ride the bus to Birmingham and spend Sunday night with the children at home, rather than be transferred to Birmingham and the transplant performed as soon as possible.

Arthur's doctor at Coffee General said the boy's condition had reached the point where every hour matters. Poisons in his system were reaching the danger point.

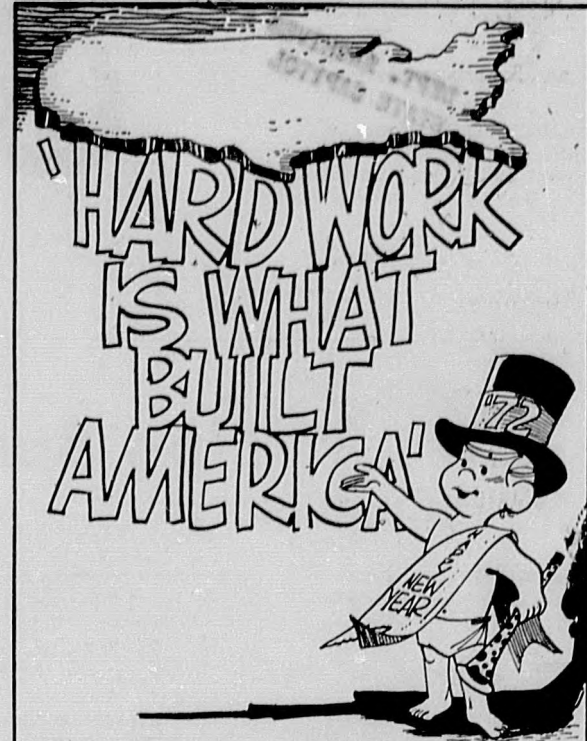

For the five children remaining at home near the Danley's Crossroads Community, it will be a tense, hopeful Christmas at best. There are Henry, 17, Jack, 14, Terry, 12, Lee, 10, and John, 2. If the doctors decide to do the transplant, Mrs. Mount said, her sister from Ft. Walton Beach has agreed to come and stay with the children. She will bring her own three children along.

Their maternal grandfather, Mr. Brooks lives nearby, where he runs a small store.

And there are the church people. The family attends Bethlehem Baptist Church on Route 2, Elba. Mrs. Mount is assistant president of the Matron's Society there and serves as a substitute Sunday School teacher.

Neighbors, like Mrs. Elizabeth Culver—a nurse at the medical clinic adjoining Coffee General Hospital—said they are in high regard. But it's a small and relatively poor community. There isn't the operation proves successful, his is telephone to bring news from Arthur and their wish during the long hours more years to come.

LET'S HAVE A PROSPEROUS NEW YEAR

A RESOLUTION FOR ALL AMERICA

Used to be popular to make New Year's Resolutions. We'd make them in all good faith, keep them awhile, and then let them fall by the wayside.

Suppose, for a moment, that all of us decided to make the same resolution for 1972—a resolution based on a philosophy recently expressed by President Nixon when he said: "Hard work is what built America, and it is time in this country that we demonstrate a new appreciation of work and what it means."

If every American pledged himself to work harder at his job, to give it all he's got, to turn out better products, to provide better service—think what it would mean to our economic well-being and general prosperity. Once again we would have pride in our jobs. We would have confidence in the things we buy, in the services we use.

And if the "let's get back to work" philosophy really took hold, the thousands and thousands of idle-bodied Americans now on welfare would accept any job that comes along and stop refusing jobs they consider menial.

President Nixon had an answer for those people. He said: "I guess every job my father had was a menial job, but any job that puts food on the table and buys shelter and clothing and education for a man's family is not a menial job. Let's recognize that in America, once and for all. Let us recognize that the only thing demeaning in America is for one man to refuse to work and to let another man who does work pay taxes to keep him on welfare. Any work is preferable to welfare."

So, our resolve for 1972: Let's get back to work!

Seat belts are a good thing to have around.

Planning For Profit In A Small Business

AUBURN UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF BUSINESS

Would you bet your life's savings on a single roll of dice? Probably not. Suppose someone offered you a roll of dice with the stipulation that you can choose your winning numbers 2, 3, 4, 10, 11, and 12 for your winning numbers, or 3, 6, 7, 8, and 9. In other words, if you choose the first group and then roll 3, you lose. Which group would you choose?

A snap judgement would probably lead you to pick the group with the most numbers—the first group. However, if you had previously considered the choice, you would choose the second group (5, 6, 7, 8, 9) because you are twice as likely to win with this smaller group. Further analysis of the situation reveals the reason why. Numbers like 2 and 12 can be rolled in only one way (1 & 1 or 6 & 6) while numbers like 3, 6, 7, 8, and 9 can be rolled in several ways. For instance, the number 7 can be rolled with any of three combinations of 4 & 3, 3 & 4, or 2 & 5. The probability of your rolling one of the numbers in the first group is one-third while your chances of winning by rolling a number in the second group is two-thirds.

The operation of a small business is somewhat analogous to the example just given. Any business venture you enter into involves a certain amount of risk. For instance, every year there are about 400,000 businesses in the United States that discon-

Miss Williams Feted

Miss Louise Williams, bride elect, was honored with a tea and miscellaneous shower on Wednesday afternoon, December 22nd, at the home of Mrs. Eris Paul.

The reception rooms of the Paul home were decorated with red and green for the occasion. A small tree of evergreen, tied with red velvet bows and miniature birds, was placed on the hearth and reflected a similar tree on the foyer table. A large Christmas tree, reaching its icicle hung branches to the ceiling, provided a background for the receiving line which was composed of Mrs. Paul, Miss Williams, Mrs. James Williams, mother of the bride, Mrs. Raymond Franklyn, Sr., of Brewton, mother of the groom, and the bride's maternal grandmother, Mrs. Burton Gass Killingsworth of Livingston.

Mrs. Robert Marsh greeted guests at the door and presented them to the receiving line. Mrs. V.D. McCrory presided over the bride registry which was placed on a small mahogany secretary decorated with a silver candlestick holding a tall red candle.

The dining table was covered with a delicate white lace and linen cloth. A silver three-branch candelabra held red candles and clusters of red carnations intertwined with baby ivy. A silver punch service held cranberry punch which was served by Miss Deborah Marsh. Miss Wilma Anderson and Miss Wendy Anderson served the dairy green and white finger sandwiches, cheese straws and the petit-fours iced in white and topped with holly sprays.

Mrs. Douglas Easters invited the guests into the gift room which was decorated with red poinsettias, Mrs. Wayne Sharpless, Mrs. Sam Collier and Mrs. Cecil Prescott also served as hostesses.

For the occasion, Miss Williams wore a dress of material, grandmother, Mrs. Douglas Easters, mother of the groom, and the bride's maternal grandmother, Mrs. Burton Gass Killingsworth of Livingston.

The term "counter-steer" one of the keys to safely controlling a skidding car, is confusing to many motorists. Liberty Mutual Insurance Company's automotive specialists explain it simply as driving in the direction you want to go.

You may not even see what hit you, if you don't completely clear off both the front and rear windshields after a snowstorm, warns Liberty Mutual Insurance Company.

Drive extra carefully on cold winter mornings, advises Liberty Mutual Insurance Company. Frost covered roads are very slippery and dangerous. Take your time even if you are late. At least you will get there.

PLANT CARE

Are you planning to transplant shrubs soon? If so, keep these points in mind. Pruning at transplanting time is very important. The root system has been reduced in transplanting; therefore, the top of the plant should be balanced with the root system by removing one-third to one-half of the foliage. This can be done without altering the shape of the plant by removing some of the canes or stems deep into the plant and heading back some of the remaining canes.

If there is a need for heavy pruning, now is a good time to get this job completed. Try to prune broadcast evergreens from the center as much as possible. This will allow light and air down into the plant and will force growth from the bottom which will give a more compact plant. This type of plant is more desirable and gives our homeowners a more pleasing effect.

WINDOW PROBLEMS
SOLVED

Home decorations problems offer opportunities to use some imaginative planning. And windows, particularly, offer such opportunities. It's possible to make tall, narrow windows look wider and shorter to make a high, steep window look lower; to make short, squat windows appear taller; or even to make a "pretend" window where there isn't one.

Small windows can be enlarged by moving the treatment outward and upward. Rods can be mounted on the wall above the window or on the ceiling, and they can extend out the side of the window so that the entire window is exposed when the draperies are opened. A valance or cornice at the top can come down to the top of the window to hide the ugly gap.

Short windows, high on the wall, will appear longer if a cafe curtain is mounted at the lower edge of the window and kept closed.

Where there are too many windows, treat two or more windows as one. This practice helps create unity. Draperies or curtains matching the wall will help make the broken area even less noticeable.

A room with too few windows can appear to have more by draping a wall area as though it were a window.

Use imagination to solve your window decoration problems, and your neighbors might think you had and interior designer decorate your house.

MEAT
While it will never replace the American hamburger—the sandwich of the future may be a soyburger made from textured vegetable proteins.

Textured vegetable proteins are a new class of food products made to imitate meat in texture, flavor and appearance. They are made from edible protein sources which include soybean oil, peanut oil, sesame seed and sunflower seed.

Because these products are low in cost and have a high nutritional value, they are considered an important potential cost breakthrough.

Textured vegetable proteins are available in frozen, canned and dehydrated forms. The dehydrated products currently have the most widespread use, since they are convenient to use and have a shelf life of many months. Available in both flavored and unflavored varieties, they can be combined with meats like ground beef or flavored and served alone.

Ground meat dishes benefit from the addition of textured vegetable proteins because these products absorb the meat juices normally lost in cooking.

by PETER G. HAMMOND
Executive Director, National Coordinating Council on Drug Education
Finding staff for drug abuse programs is a difficult but critical part of any drug program. Good staff are found to be: dedicated and selfless; flexible; aware of their own fragile humanity; but strong enough to use it in someone else's behalf; trustworthy; able to laugh even when life is full of tears; and able to make contact with people on a one-to-one basis. They must look past the immediate symptom to the cause. They must be objective, analytical and thoroughly professional. And finally, a staff cannot give up. The man or woman, who comes to a crisis center and other treatment programs, has all but given up, and it is up to the staff to restore the courage to try again.

No such single staffer combines all of the skills. Instead, a staff should be assembled that combines these qualities, that offers a collective resource of patience, imagination and genuine love of fellow man. The staff should include experienced drug users, who know firsthand what it feels like to have an acid flush or to suddenly come unglued and disoriented. Professional medical and psychological help must be available, perhaps on a shared-time or periodic basis. Legal services are another part of the package. Someone ought to be on the staff—perhaps help put it together—who is part of the neighborhood, and who can be the bridge between well-meaning but non-resident professionals and the citizens of the neighborhood.
